FIELD REPORT: ONE DAY HISTORY TOUR TO MARTAND SUN TEMPLE

A one-day history tour to Martand Sun Temple was organized for U.G. 6th Semester and B.Ed 3rd Semester History students with the aim of providing experiential learning beyond the classroom and fostering an appreciation for our rich cultural heritage. The visit offered students an opportunity to connect historical knowledge with practical observation of one of Kashmir's most significant ancient monuments.

Objectives

- To understand the historical and architectural significance of Martand Sun Temple.
- To connect classroom learning with real-world heritage.
- To encourage values of preservation, respect for nature, and cultural diversity.
- To develop historical awareness through field-based learning.

Highlights of the Tour

The students were guided through the temple complex where they closely observed the ancient architectural style, stone carvings, and the overall layout of the monument. Special attention was given to the temple's scientific alignment, artistic excellence, and historical relevance.

Students also learned about the rule of Lalitaditya Muktapida of the Karkota dynasty, who is credited with the construction of this grand Sun Temple during the 8th century CE. Discussions were held regarding the political vision, cultural achievements, and architectural patronage of his reign.

The scenic beauty surrounding the temple added to the educational experience, helping students understand the relationship between geography, spirituality, and heritage.

Group discussions, note-taking, photography, and reflective observation made the visit academically enriching and engaging.

Learning Outcomes

- Students gained real-life exposure to the architectural marvels of ancient India
- Their understanding of history, archaeology, art, and cultural heritage was strengthened.
- They developed a sense of pride and responsibility toward preserving historical monuments.
- Teamwork, observation skills, and reflective learning were encouraged.
- The visit promoted deeper understanding of regional history and heritage conservation.

Participation

The tour was attended by U.G. 6th Semester and B.Ed 3rd Semester students along with faculty members. The active participation of students made the tour successful and meaningful. Their curiosity, discipline, and academic involvement contributed significantly to the overall learning experience.

Conclusion

The one-day history tour to Martand Sun Temple was an enriching and memorable experience. It successfully combined learning with exploration, allowing students to witness history beyond textbooks.

The visit inspired students to value and preserve our cultural heritage while understanding the greatness of ancient Indian civilization. Such educational tours play a vital role in promoting practical learning, historical consciousness, and cultural responsibility among students.
